on the coast of Newfoundland, and tells a graphic story of the hardships endured by fishmen there. Dr. Howard said:

'I have learned this summer of one of the hardest medical practices in the world. It is the work of the little hospital ship Starthcona. The storms along the dreary stretch of coast from St, John's N. This wicked person sold Bibles by day and stole horses by night. Such a combination was never known before in the Keystone State. This man had the Scriptures at his tongue's end. He quoted liberally from the prophets when selling horses which he had taken from the stables of some unsuspecting granger. Some of those who had bought Bibles from him were amazed, as they on the unsophisticated farmers of Penn-Bibles from him were amazed, as they testified in the magistrate's court that "such a Christian-appearing man" was an accomplished horse thief. This purloiner of other men's horses was, it is stated, "an exemplary Bible-class teacher." He not only sold the Scriptures, but expounded and interpreted them as well. Young women, who had sat at the feet of this Gamaliel, gave him the highest sort of a character when he of highest sort of a character when he ofhighest sort of a character when he of-fered his stolen goods for sale. Enter-prising papas, who would have dis-trusted any other horse dealer, asked ro-questions when their daughters told them that this particular dealer was an expert in the Scriptures. They paid the money and rejoiced that they had the privilege of meeting a Bible scholar who sold fine horses at half their value. Now there is mourning among the farm-
